Description

In the folders, there are tasks that we had the opportunity to perform during the programming classes in C++. These classes gave me a lot of knowledge about this programming language, as well as taught me how to solve various seemingly difficult problems at first glance. Towards the end of the semester, the tasks took the form of mini-projects, which allowed me to utilize the knowledge acquired in the C++ programming language.